“ Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by as you handed me oatmeal while I ran to the school bus.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by during the countless hours spent at your house on 1112.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by on the evenings we spent thrifting at your favorite store on Racine.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by as quickly as your cakes, cheese spaghetti, and butter-roll did at dinner.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by even during your infamous long pauses as you ended a phone call.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by when we played deuces wild for a quarter.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by in 2012, when we worked hard every night to help you learn how to use your first computer at 74 years old.
Time Flies, Granny G.
It flew by as we drove through Midnight, Mississippi, soaking in the stories of your hometown and youth.
Time Flies, Granny G.
Just like it did our last Thanksgiving in Mississippi – it was just you, Mom, Man, and me.
Time Flies, Granny G,
And I'd give anything to go back in time, slow those moments down, and embrace them even more.

*Love you Granny G,
Rodd*
