“ I knew George as he was my best friends dad (Dierdre) growing up. I remember him letting us on the Cta bus when he drove. I also remember him being stern but in a caring way. He always seemed to be about the order of business even as we got older. Rest in peace George. I'm sure Dee greeted you at the gates

“ When I was a kid during one of our Chicago visits . The adults decided on Burger King for dinner. As Uncle George's made his way to the door the special instructions were being shouted out. This was the emergence of the “have it your way” campaign. He responded ok got it shouting back some of the instructions not writing anything down. I thought to myself, he's smart.

When he returned he sat all the food on the table and proceeded to the stairs leading up to the bedrooms. The shouting of I had this and that began with the special instructions. He responded they're all the same. Take off what you don't want or get extra onions or pickles from someone who doesn't want them. Then disappeared into the back of the house. I thought to myself, he's smart.

George Ambrose and Charlotte are my God sister and Brother. George would always check to make sure I was OK. We met traveling with V103 all over the world. He loved to start a sparking conversation but his heart was good as gold. He loved him some Charlotte. I can only imagine the debates he is having with GOD. I will miss him.
