

Jerry Levon Ingram

July 25, 1962 - May 11, 2026

Jerry loved spending time with family, especially at the summer BBQs in the Forrest Preserve. If Jerry loved you, you knew it. He was your biggest fan, he wanted the absolute best for you.

Corvettes, watching westerns, smoking cigars, and in his younger days, having a glass of Tanqueray & Tonic were all his pastimes. He enjoyed nice restaurants and loved to travel. Being on the sand, and getting in the water. The water was a happy place for him. He was a true Chicago sports fan. He had multiple jerseys and hats for every sports team in Chicago. He loved his snacks. He would keep the candy jar in the living room full, especially when he knew his kids and grandkids were coming over.

Jerry also really loved Christmas. He was the true definition of a stocking stuffer. We would look forward to looking into our Christmas stockings, just as much as we would opening perfectly chosen gifts.

Everyone who knows Jerry, knows he could talk for hours. For those of who had the opportunity to converse with him, you know one of his most common go-to lines was, "It is, what it is". Whether he was giving advice, being a mentor, or having a plain old conversation. He always left you with something you could use.
