“ Dear Uncle Sim, I just wished I could've told how much you meant to me just one more time! I'm sure you knew but still....I'm grateful that you knew that I loved you and those were my last words to you, as they were for all of my uncles and aunt that has transcended. I'm so hurt and frustrated about your transition, although I do understand that it was just your time and you've lived a thousand times over, on earth, in this life. I wonder what you are or who you are in the afterlife? Sometimes I visualize you walking toward me on the tip of your toes, down the street. big smile, open arms, plenty of kisses and interests in what I'm doing with my life and some advice and encouragement. That's the Uncle Sim that I know! That's the Uncle Sim that I'll mourn until my dying day! Bless and curse, your sister Liz, for teaching her children how to love her siblings without judgement and with plenty reverence! It's the very reason why it's so darn heart wrenching that you're gone yet it is also the reason why I have absolutely no regrets with the relationship that I shared with you. I LOVE YOU AND I MISS YOU UNCLE SIM! Rest assured you did some good works during your journey here....

“ Memories of you are heaven sent, with a pat on the back no one could ever forget Laughing loudly and talking smack....with a Sammy Whammy from your nephews greetings, to you and I conversating and believing in everything I was saying.

In memory of you I am going to clap loudly every day, too not remembering what I did yesterday.

This will help ease the pain of God having to take you away. It's truly a shocker to see you go, but I know you're with family at the place I call home.

*Miss you Uncle Sim

“ Uncle Sim, I love you so very immensely and I'll miss you just the same. You've always been good to me and supportive of me. I'll never forget our conversations and how you encouraged me to do great things and complimented me. I'll always hold you near and dear to my heart. My comfort is this: the battle is over and you're at peace! LOVE YOU FOREVER, Tanisha
