“Vance Williams was my Life Partner for over 14 years. He was my counselor, lover and friend. He will be truly missed. In my life time I have never had anyone to love me like Vance did. I will cherish the memories forever.

Vance was truly a remarkable, humorous, intelligent, fun-loving, talented, sensitive, compassionate, caring, authentic kind of guy who was even tolerant of those who had 'challenging personalities'. He was the star of my play, 'Fats: His Life And Times' that was produced at Eta Creative Arts Foundation decades ago about the life and career of legendary jazz musician, Thomas "Fats" Waller. It was directed by Okoro Harold Johnson. Vance had a wonderful, engaging spirit; he was open-minded and could carry on a discussion about any kind of topic. This is a sentiment that most people would agree with, like the title of the classic Nat King Cole song, Vance Williams was genuine and simply UNFORGETTABLE!
Thanks for sharing your wonderfully magical persona with us.
